Australian Christian Home Schooling provides home schooling families with curriculum and support services. Formerly known as the Australian Christian Academy, we have been assisting families with the education of their children at home since 1982. Whether your child is commencing the Pre-School years, or aiming to graduate at the Year 12 level, we can provide a service to assist your home schooling needs.

Home schooling is the educational practice where parents are fully responsible for the education of their own children. Research into home schooling (McDowell & Ray, 2000) has shown that home schooled children are able to do well academically and that they are well socialised.

Members of Australian Christian Home Schooling use the Australianised ACE curriculum, which is Australia’s most widely used home schooling curriculum.

Australian Christian Home Schooling provides two levels of service, which are tailored to meet the different needs of students and their families.

These levels are:

- Basic Home Schooling Membership
- Advanced Home Schooling Membership

What is Home Schooling?

Definition

Home schooling is the practice of parents taking responsibility for the education of their own children in the environment of their own family home.

The modern home education movement is rapidly growing, both in Australia and around the world. Educational researchers state that home education is a growing global educational phenomenon.

History

Home schooling, however, is not a new educational phenomenon. Historians have noted that in the past, the home and the church have been largely responsible for education in the western world. Home-based education has been the educational “norm” for much of the history of our culture.

Compulsory State education is a relatively recent phenomenon, arising from a nationalistic movement of the 19th Century. From the 1870s, the “State” began to take control of education in many western nations. In Australia, during the 1800s, the state designed the learning requirements and the goals of education based on “common Christianity”.

During the 20th century, however, many Christian values were slowly withdrawn from the Australian education syllabus. By the 1960s, Australian schools saw traditional Biblical Christian values replaced by humanistic values. Accompanying this trend was a decline in basic literacy and numeracy and general academic standards in schools.

Similarly, declining moral values in school curricula was accompanied by moral decline in students. This moral decline was characterised by the questioning of biblical values and parental authority, a marked increase in teenage delinquency, bullying, drug and alcohol abuse, sexual promiscuity, teenage pregnancy and youth suicide in our society. Some educators and parents have concluded that our State schools are not the best environment for the academic and social development of children.

In response to these trends within the public school system in the 1960s, 1970s and 1980s, the modern home schooling movement grew dramatically. Now, in the 21st century, parents have, in home schooling, an educational alternative for their children which is consistent with their own family values.

Benefits of Home Schooling

Academic benefits
Home schooling is distinctly tailored to the needs of the individual child. Each child’s academic needs are directly addressed with ACHS’s academic program. Our academic program combines individualised curriculum, mastery learning methods, professional teachers (Advanced Level) and parent dedication to give each student access to optimal academic growth.

Home schooled students are able to focus on their work in a loving environment free from distraction by peer pressure, large class numbers, foolish class behaviour, bullying and ridicule. Home schooled students are able to avoid the major disadvantages of mass education.

Academic research by respected scholars (1-3) around the world show that home educated students in general, are able to perform academically as well as, if not better than, children their own age, who attend traditional schools.

ACHS students are taught to read by the phonics method. This method builds strong readers. We provide assistance to students who come to ACHS with poor reading skills. Throughout our academic program, our students are encouraged to develop independent study skills, which equip them well for later TAFE and University studies.

Family Values Benefits
Home schooling parents are able to emphasise to their children, the importance of the nuclear family. They are able to teach their children their own family values. Thus, home schooled children do not suffer conflicting values between home and a school-based education. This consistency of lifestyle and family values assists children to become secure and confident. Furthermore, home educated children are better protected from values which are contrary to family values, and from exposure to negative peer influences and other role models and lifestyles contrary to their family values.

Socialisation Benefits
Social Psychologist, Dr. Durkin (1995) defines socialisation, in the Encyclopedia of Social Psychology, as:

“the process whereby people acquire the rules of behaviour and systems, beliefs and attitudes that equip a person to function effectively as a member of a particular society” (p.614).

Home educated children interact socially with people across the complete age-range of society. Through this interaction they are able to acquire the rules of behaviour, and the beliefs and attitudes that will allow them to function effectively as members of our society. Unlike children who are in age-peer classes for up to twelve years, home educated students are not socially forced into prolonged unwelcomed relationships with children of their own age, or with children who may be a bad influence. Age-segregated classrooms, in schools, differ from the reality of our communities, as nowhere else in our society are people restricted to interacting, on a long-term basis, with people of the same age, experience and values.

Home schooled children are able to avoid unhealthy peer dependency. This occurs when age-peers provide their approval to classmates for poor academic and social behaviour. Home schooled students have the opportunity to gain affirmation from godly parents, other significant adults, their siblings and their chosen friends for positive academic and social behaviour. This socialisation process can occur in a natural and supportive upbringing, which exposes them to healthy relationships across a wide age range.

Family Relationships Benefits
Home schooling parents enjoy the privilege of being with their children throughout the school day. They are able to maintain close family relationships as a normal part of living. This gives committed home educators a deep sense of fulfilment when it comes to fathering and mothering. It also gives children a greater sense of security. This security, psychologists believe, allows children to confidently progress into the adult world, at the appropriate time. (8)

Parenting Benefits
Home schooling parents have control of their child’s education and development rather than handing this over to others in schools. They are able to provide their loving home environment as an ideal context for their children’s nurture and education. Home schooling enables parents to incorporate good discipline, efficient use of time and “real-life” experiences into their children’s formal education.

Academic researchers(4-7) demonstrated that home schooled students have a significantly higher self-concept than traditionally-schooled students. Dr. Delahooke(5) showed that home schooled students are more socially adjusted and display better communication skills and daily living skills than traditionally-schooled children. Dr. L. Shyers(7) research showed that home educated students resorted to significantly lower problem behaviour, as a way of coping with life’s difficulties than traditionally-schooled children. Dr. Smedley’s work noted that because home schooled students related far more frequently to adults during the day, they were consequently more mature than their traditionally school-educated counterparts.

Home schooled children are protected from the negative peer influences of the classroom, and are able to grow in a relaxed manner, to reach their God given potential. They are able to grow in self-confidence and confidence in God within the secure, family environment. They can grow as strong individuals, less susceptible to a “herd mentality”, and are able to love and serve others in the wider community.

The Curriculum

The Australian Christian Home Schooling uses the International ACE curriculum. ACE is Australia’s most widely used home education curriculum. ACE is a “Mastery Learning” academic program.

ACHS’s curriculum offers:

- A Comprehensive Kindergarten Program.
- A Phonics-Based Learning-to-Read program.
- A core curriculum of 5 subjects
  - Maths
  - English
  - Social Studies
  - Science
  - Word Building (Spelling)
- Over 50 elective subjects for High School.
- Regular testing. Check-up tests, self tests and unit tests are built into every unit of work.

Spiritual Benefits

Children who are home schooled with Australian Christian Home Schooling are able to be grounded in the Christian faith. They learn from Christian curriculum and are exposed to your family’s spiritual tone on a consistent basis. They are also protected from non-Christian influences, humanistic teaching and humanistic teachers. Thus, our students have the opportunity to literally follow the “faith of our fathers’, as they respond to the instruction of their father and the law of their mother (Proverbs 1:8). Such children have a maximum opportunity to come to know God the Father and Jesus Christ whom He has sent.

The Methodology

LEARNING CENTRED The self-instructional method of learning is centred around children and their learning, not the teacher and teaching.

GOAL SETTING Children are taught to set daily, weekly and long-term goals.

BUILT-IN CHECKS ON LEARNING The scoring strips, checkup quizzes, self tests and unit tests are points of reference to check to see if learning is really taking place. Very few, if any, other learning methods in Australia employ such an objective set of learning reference points.

LEARNING AT THE CHILD’S RATE The use of the ACE system allows the child to learn at his or her own rate. This is true for students who are gifted learners, for students whose learning abilities are not as advanced and also for students with learning difficulties.

ENSURES PROGRESS Diligent, daily use of the ACE system provides the child with an efficient home-based education. A child can progress from the junior academic levels into High School academic levels under parental control and supervision.

CHARACTER BUILDING Use of the ACE self-instructional, individualised system promotes independent learning, honesty, accountability, reliability and stability in the child who is faithful, and is supervised well by his or her parents.

DAILY ACCOUNTABILITY The daily goal check allows parents to check the child’s goals, work and learning for the day.

Benefits of the Australianised ACE Curriculum

The CURRICULUM is ESTABLISHED It has been developed by curriculum writing experts. Parents don’t have to find, access and compile their own curriculum. It is already in place.

SELF INSTRUCTIONAL The ACE curriculum is a self-instructional tool, not a school text book. It does not need a professional teacher with a degree in a subject to teach that subject to your child. The teaching is written into the curriculum. This method of instruction is one of the best forms of self-directed and mastery learning. It is used in registered schools in all Australian states.

EMPOWERS PARENTS The Bible states that parents are to teach their children. (Deuteronomy 6:5-7; Proverbs 22:6; Ephesians 6:4). The ACE curriculum provides the expertise in each specific subject area to assist the parent in this task. Thus the parent does not have to have a degree in any particular subject area. The partnership of the parent, the curriculum and ACHS allows the parent to confidently teach the child.

BIBLICAL WORLDVIEW The philosophy and worldview of the curriculum is distinctly Biblical. It embodies traditional Biblical Christian values.

CHARACTER BUILDING The curriculum encourages the development of positive character traits in the child. These character traits include characteristics that Jesus demonstrated such as: courage, honesty, compassion, creativity, resourcefulness, etc. Positive character development in children is one of the main goals for home educators.

EMPATHISES WITH CHILDREN The cartoon characters in the curriculum grow up with your children. They face similar problems that children normally face and exhibit Biblical answers to their problems. The curriculum provides wholesome role models for children as they study daily.

COLOURFUL & INTERESTING The work units look good and are fun to use.

ENCOURAGES THOUGHT The activities in the curriculum require varied levels of higher order thinking processes.

SAFETY NET The curriculum is a safety net for you as an educator. It provides the basics of education, so your child will not miss out on important steps in education. This core curriculum covers all that is required for a fundamentally sound education.

ALLOWS FOR CREATIVITY Other activities or subjects may be added beyond the core curriculum to enhance the child’s development and education according to his or her individual gifts and abilities. Similarly, the structured curriculum can be the basis for any form of further discussion, research or follow-up learning activities associated with points of interest for your child.

FREES THE PARENT Parents are free from being loaded down with tedious lesson planning. They are freed to give their full attention to their own children without being hindered by having to develop other curricula and lesson plans.

We believe in:
* The inspiration of the whole Bible;
* The one God, eternally existent Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, who created man by a direct, immediate act;
* The deity, pre-existence, incarnation, virgin birth, sinless life, miracles, substitutionary death, bodily resurrection, ascension to Heaven, and the second coming of the Lord Jesus Christ.
* The fall of man, the need of regeneration by the operation of the Holy Spirit on the basis of grace alone, and the resurrection of all, to life or damnation.
* The spiritual relationship of all believers in the Lord Jesus Christ, living a life of righteous works, avoiding sin, witnessing of His saving grace through the ministry of the Holy Spirit.

The ACHS academic program consists of an individualised, self-instructional curriculum which is consistent with the above.

How long till we start? Allow 3-4 weeks between the time of your application with ACHS and your child commencing on his/her prescribed work.

Starting up with Australian Christian Home Schooling, involves our staff setting up your files, accounts, and the reporting mechanisms for your children. This process begins when we receive your family and student membership forms (pages 11-16) together with the start-up fee of $220 and $50 per child for diagnostic tests (these prices include G.S.T.). The staff will then send you a Starter’s Pack, containing training and diagnostic materials.

Assessment Stage
Each child is assessed for their academic performance level. Your child/ren do the Maths, English, Literacy and Word Building Diagnostic Tests under your supervision, in your home. After completion, you send those tests back, with $230 per child. This cost covers the expenses for the first order of curriculum materials and the appraisement process. The appraisement process involves ACHS staff evaluating the completed diagnostic tests and setting an academic prescription for your child/ren. This prescription will consist of:
1. A bridging course to fill the child’s learning gaps.
2. Curriculum, called “PACEs”, which is prescribed for your child at his or her unique learning achievement level.

Parent Training
The parent primarily involved in the academic supervision of your child/ren is required to do the home educator’s training course. You and your family can derive the maximum benefit of the use of the ACE curriculum if at least one parent has completed this training. The training consists of a manual and PACEs which are completed at home and sent to ACHS. Tests must be returned with your child’s/children’s completed diagnostic tests.

Your Learning Centre
Choose the room you think is best suited to become your learning centre. Your training manual will show you how to set up your learning centre and how to use the ACE learning procedures.
